DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

Claims 1-4 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by JP 10-299943.

JP 10-299943 discloses: (see translation of ISR).

In reference to claim Claim 1

A method of heating a fluid controller using a heating device incorporating heaters and including a pair of holding members 14 15 for sandwiching the fluid controller to be heated from both sides, wherein when heating the fluid controller having a projecting joint 6 at side surfaces and an operation driving part 3 arranged at a top surface of a block shaped body 2, the body is heated from both side surfaces while controlling the temperature of a bottom surface of the body of the fluid controller. The heat from the heaters will permeate the device and act to heat from all directions to some extent.

In reference to claim Claim 2

The method of heating the fluid controller as claimed in claim 1, wherein a joint accommodating recess 22 for accommodating the joint is formed in the holding member, and the joint is heated with the body of the fluid controller.

Art Unit: 3742

In reference to claim Claim 3

The method of heating the fluid controller as claimed in claim 1 [[or 2]], wherein heating is performed so that the central portion of each side surface of the body becomes a relatively high temperature compared with the bottom portion and the top portion thereof. Since applicant has not specifically defined what is meant by “relatively high” the art reads on the claim as most broadly interpreted.

In reference to claim Claim 4

The method of heating the fluid controller as claimed in claim 2, wherein heating is performed so that the central portion of each side surface of the body becomes a relatively high temperature compared to the bottom portion. Since applicant has not specifically defined what is meant by “relatively high” the art reads on the claim as most broadly interpreted.

The prior art made of record and not relied upon is considered pertinent to applicant's disclosure.
